This is a free screensaver for the desktop. It simulates a racing experience using a unique physics engine and a 3D simulation of a car and track. Each race is unique because of the robust physics engine that simulates the changing conditions of a real race. You will never see the same race twice because of this unique physics based racing system. You can also specify exactly how you want the race to proceed. For example, you can specify the size and location of the car, the amount of fuel you want to burn, the color of your car, the number of laps, the race winner, and so on. You can also customize the color of the racing track. You can specify the distance between the track and the car or the exact location of the track or car on the screen. The screen can be placed on top of the desktop or on the bottom of the screen. You can also specify how many cars are on the track. You can specify the starting positions of the cars or have the program place the cars at random. You can also specify how many laps you want to run and how much fuel you want the cars to burn. You can even specify exactly how many times the cars have to lap the track during the race. Features: Unique physics engine simulates the changing conditions of a real race. RACECAR is a race-winning screensaver that brings the experience of watching a televised race or racing game into your desktop. Omarosa Manigault-Newman is president and CEO of the Trump re-election campaign's African American Advisory Council, part of the campaign's continuing efforts to court black voters. | Aaron P. Bernstein/Getty Images Omarosa Manigault Newman Omarosa joins Trump campaign as black outreach director Omarosa Manigault Newman, one of President Donald Trump's most vocal and controversial supporters during the 2016 campaign, has joined the Trump reelection campaign as its outreach director to black voters. The former White House aide was appointed to the role in a memo sent to the campaign's national staff on Tuesday, according to a person familiar with the hiring who asked not to be named. Manigault Newman, who is married to a cousin of first lady Melania Trump, is president and CEO of the Trump re-election campaign's African American Advisory Council, part of the campaign's continuing efforts to court black voters. Manigault Newman, 45, worked as a reality TV producer before joining the Trump administration in the Office of Public Liaison and Intergovernmental Affairs. She's best known for her role as the villainous "Jersey Shore" star Ronnie "Snooki" Polizzi on the MTV show and played the role again for multiple spinoffs and other media. Before the 2016 election, Manigault Newman was critical of former Democratic nominee Hillary Clinton and former President Barack Obama, even labeling herself a "never Trumper." She and Trump have had an ongoing public feud since the president's 2016 campaign, including a controversial recording of a private conversation in the White House during which Trump can be heard describing alleged instances of racism among "the blacks." In a statement Tuesday, Manigault Newman said she is excited to join the Trump campaign and serve the country in a new capacity. "As the first African American woman to advise a major presidential campaign, I am honored to play a role in supporting President Trump's re-election," Manigault Newman said in a statement. "The people of the African American community have been an integral part of President Trump's success, and I am excited to partner with them on their issues and help the campaign continue to spread the President's 'Make America Great Again' message to all Americans." Manigault Newman has also given occasional appeals the revocation of his community supervision. Appellant pleaded guilty to the offense of delivery of a controlled substance, and the trial court assessed punishment at confinement for ten years and a $1,000 fine. Appellant filed a notice of appeal. Appellant’s counsel on appeal filed a brief in compliance with Anders v. California, 386 U.S. 738 (1967), and Gainous v. State, 436 S.W.2d 137 (Tex. Crim. App. 1969). We dismiss the appeal. An Anders brief is not a vehicle for presenting claims of error. However, we may, upon
